Introduction

Welcome to the University of Galway Brand Book.

These guidelines will introduce you to the new University of Galway identity and help inspire your future communications.

They should not be seen as a manual on how to design, but rather a visual aid to spark creativity and ensure consistency and clarity across all our brand outputs.

These themes are our key characteristics and how we want to be perceived. They were developed as part of the rebrand process, through our internal and external consultation, and build upon those in the University Strategy - Shared Vision, Shaped By Values 2020-25.

Location

Our place in the world is unique and we are deeply embedded within it – we need to use that to our advantage and showcase the city and region as one of the best places in the world to study and work. Culturally vibrant, creative and famous for its welcome and friendly atmosphere with a community spirit that has the University at its heart.

Surrounded by stunning landscapes on the edge of Europe, our location is one of our biggest strengths and we are deeply embedded within it.

Irish Identity

We are fiercely proud of our Irish identity – it's an integral part of the fabric of our University. Our commitment to the Irish language and culture is something to be celebrated. This must be handled intelligently and sensitively and be able to flex according to distinct audiences.

Belief in the future

We are a world-leading university in sustainability, law, medtech, onehealth, engineering, environment, marine and other areas and have an impact on the world that we are proud of but don't shout about enough.

Our challenger mindset is the core driver that continually pushes us forward to achieve progress and inspire action. We set our ambitions high and are always prepared to take the bold steps needed to break through.

Student-Centric

We are welcoming and open to all, with an unstinting commitment to our students of all stripes to prioritise their education and welfare. Our staff go above and beyond to support our students.

We believe education is for everyone and widen participation across all of our subjects, collaborate with our students to advance teaching methods and design their future pathways to success.

Creative Thinkers

We are not afraid to do things differently. Reflecting the artistic and creative heritage of the city – we challenge convention, combining disparate strengths to generate creative solutions.

We invite everyone to be part of our vibrant and diverse community, to think beyond natural parameters and step outside of their comfort zone in the safe belief that others will step outside with you.

Our Visual Identity

The 'University of Galway' primary logo is the identity's most valuable component – this element sets us apart from other universities and is used as a mark of authenticity.

Our identity is made up of two core elements; the University of Galway crest and the University of Galway 'wordmark' or text. Together these elements make up the University of Galway primary logo. The crest and wordmark lockup should not be broken unless as specified in these guidelines.

Primary Logo Full

Our primary logo is fundamental to our brand communication – this is our most valuable asset and is used to maintain a strong visual presence.

Positive

This is the positive version of your primary logo. This version of the logo should be used on the majority of applications.

Negative

This version is an alternative for when the logo needs to be reversed out of darker backgrounds, including the Galway Maroon.

Black Mono Logo

Our black logo is used in exceptional circumstances for mono applications only, when our logo needs to appear on a white or very light background.

Primary Logo Full | Logo Position

Due to the width of the full version of the primary logo, the positioning should be in the left corners of a portrait format.

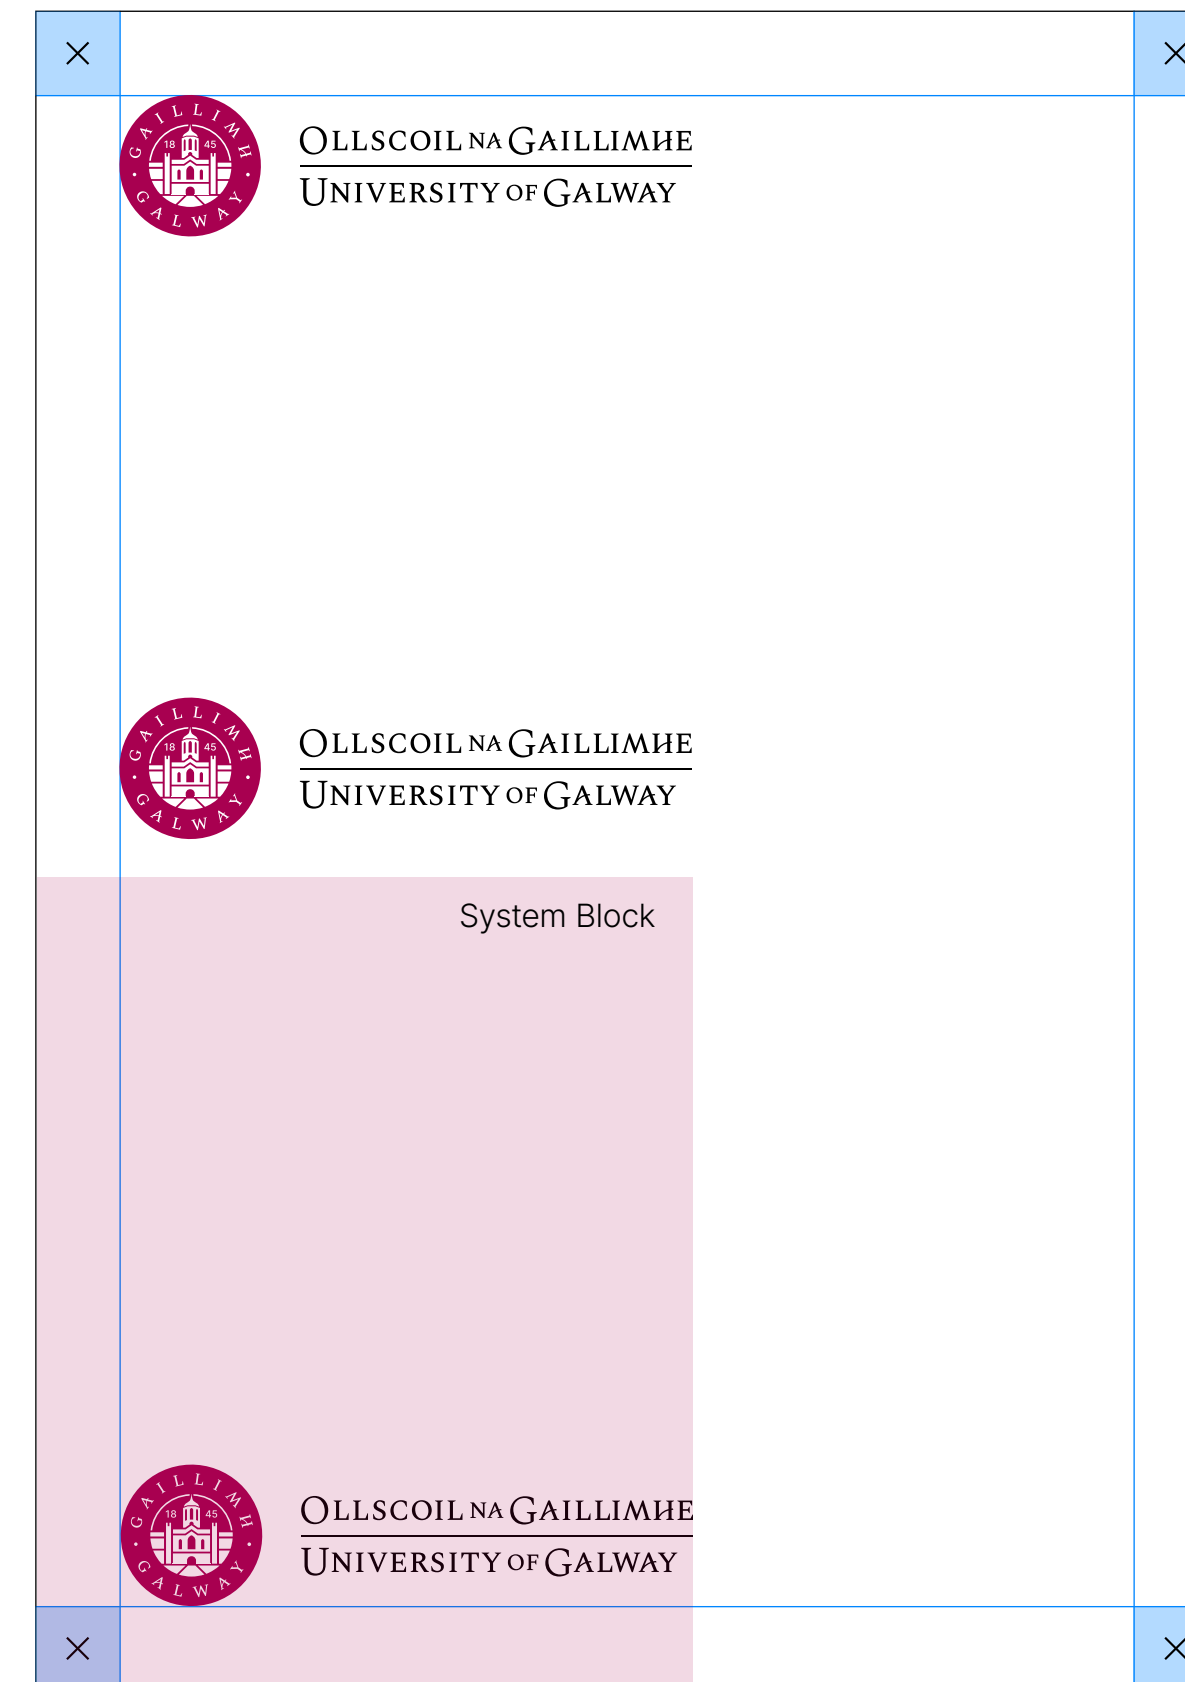

On landscape formats the logo can also be centred or ranged right depending on the design layout. In such cases, the design should be referred to the marketing team for sign off.

In some communications, for example large format print, the full logo can be positioned directly above or below system blocks. In such cases, the design should be referred to the marketing team for sign off.

Primary Logo Full | Clear Space

In order to protect the visual clarity of our logo and to maximise its presence, it is important that we maintain adequate clear space around it. The exclusion zone around our logo defines the space in which no other design element can intrude. This distance is specified in the example to the right and is created using a quarter of the University of Galway crest.

Logo Position / Portrait

On portrait formats, the logo should sit in the left corners.

Logo Position / Landscape

On landscape formats, the logo can also be centred or ranged right depending on the design. For example this positioning can be used on branded merchandise such as business cards, pens and water bottles.

Clear Space

Minimum clear space is a quarter of the brand symbol.

Secondary Logo | Logo Position

The secondary logo should always sit in the corners of a portrait format. These positions are specified in example to the right. The layouts seen here also apply to a landscape format, however the logo can also be centred depending on the design. In cases such as this, the design should be referred to the marketing team for further guidance.

Minimum Size

To ensure our logo is always legible, our logo should not be reproduced at a size smaller than the sizes outlined below:

Primary Logo Full

Width: 45mm x Height: 11mm

Primary Logo Stacked

Width: 30mm x Height: 14mm

Secondary Logo Stacked

Width: 17mm x Height: 30mm

Recommended Sizes

These measurements can be used to guide the width of the logo on each size of print communication:

Primary Logo Full

- A2 Recommended width 148mm
- A3 Recommended width 110mm
- A4 Recommended width 60mm
- A5 Recommended width 55mm
- A6 Recommended width 50mm

Primary Logo Stacked

- A2 Recommended width 100mm
- A3 Recommended width 66mm
- A4 Recommended width 40mm
- A5 Recommended width 35mm
- A6 Recommended width 32mm

If the application is not a standard 'A' size please use the closest approximation.

Digital applications may be affected by screen resolution and device size, therefore logo sizes within digital applications should always be approved by marketing.

Exceptional Usage

For merchandise and any other application where there is restricted space, e.g. pens, please always ensure that the wordmark copy is legible.

Minimum Size

45mm / 100px

30mm / 132px

17mm / 64px

This is for visual purposes only
– these logos are not to scale.

Sports Teams and Clubs Lockup

Sports teams and clubs will each have an individual lockup logo. They will always use the secondary logo. The lockup text must always be positioned below the logo and divider line.

Please refer to the brand portal to access all the various formats of these logos.

Sports team lockups must follow the above guidelines. Padding between the Secondary logo and lockup text is created using the U from University and two divider lines above and below the fixed divider line.

Secondary Colour Palette

Our secondary colour palette complements our primary palette, by adding a range of new colours that can be utilised in communications that use accent colour. For example, diagrams, charts, tables, analytical data, publication navigation.

Secondary colour tints can be used in communications that illustrate large amounts of data.

Proportional Colour Usage

Using colour proportions correctly is vital to our visual identity. Our lead colour is Galway Maroon and should appear in all communications.

Supporting colours can be used within compositions to build the Galway 'block' design system. Supporting colours should never become a lead.

Guidelines on colour proportion usage are displayed in the graphic to the right.

The chart above shows the ideal proportional colour usage across the University of Galway brand within a piece of marketing collateral.

Oversized Body Copy

Oversized body copy is used to create visual hierarchy within large bodies of text – this copy is not repeated within the body copy.

Font used must be Spectral Light.

Oversized body copy must be at least 8pts bigger than body copy to create apparent contrast between font sizes. For example if you are using a body copy of 15pts oversized body copy should be 24pts.

Oversized body copy leading must use a minimum leading that is 3pts above the font's height. Example 24pts font height 27pts line height.

Body Copy Example 12pt.

Call-out

Call-outs are used to bring attention to text within the body copy.

Font used must be Inter Medium and must appear in a highlight colour (Magenta or white).

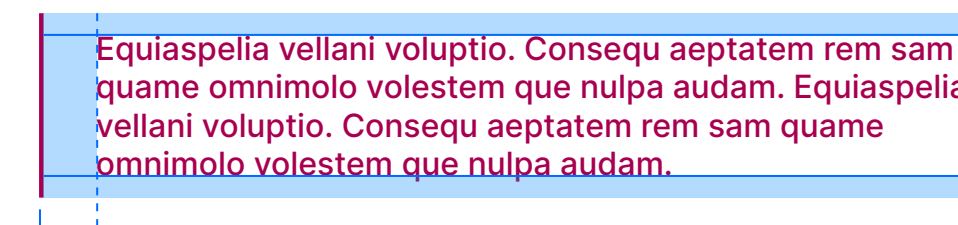

Call-out font size must be 3pts more than body copy font size. For example, if you are using a 12pt body copy font then the call-out font must be 15pts.

Leading for call-out text must use a minimum leading that is 3pts above the font's height. For example, if you are using a 12pt font then the leading should be 15pts.

The call-out line must be the same or as close to the font line width as possible.

Italicisation

In headlines or in oversized body copy that is set in Spectral, Italics may be used to emphasise a word or on conjunctive words, for example; 'to' and 'of', this creates a visual hierarchy.

Italics should always be used in the isolated URL lockup to emphasise the word 'of'.

Design System

Building our brand to set our future course.

Our entire visual language is built on a block structure, which enables us to create highly consistent and endlessly creative brand communications. This system allows for the multiple facets that make the University of Galway unique. Whether it's our ornate architecture, stunning location, world class facilities or our modern diverse student population, this system allows us to showcase the best of who we truly are. By taking ownership of our maroon colour, we set ourselves apart from everyone else, without compromising on legibility. It speaks to the relentlessly bold, confident and determined nature of the University.

Platform Assets Usage

Here you can see the different elements used in our block system, for the construction of our brand communications. Throughout this section of the guide, you will see examples of how these elements are used and should be referred to when creating brand outputs.

It's important to note that apart from the logo, not all the elements shown here need to be present on every piece of communication. For example, a full bleed image can eliminate some of the colour blocks or white can be the dominant colour on a communication piece instead of Galway Maroon.

When you look at visual examples throughout these guides, you will see the flexibility of our system while maintaining an overall look and feel which is distinctly University of Galway.

Correct usage of brand elements are explored on the following pages.

Headline text set in Spectral, aligned to the grid and sized correctly to the space where it sits.

White colour block, is one of our dominant primary colours and should be lead in our communications. Headlines, body copy and cut-out imagery can be set against this block.

Galway Maroon colour block, is one of our dominant primary colours and should be lead in our communications. Headlines, body copy and cut-out imagery can be set against this block.

Dark Maroon block, set to the grid system, can be used as graphic device which reinforces our brand colour palette or can house text.

Image set within the format, aligned with the grid system. More than one image can be set within a format. Images can be set to full bleed of the format and thus eliminate some of the other brand system elements.

University logo should sit in the corners of the formats and be present on all communications.

Pink highlight line should always be anchored against imagery. Please refer to pages 64 and 65 for correct usage guides.

The grid system we use is adaptable to different format shapes. A wide range of grid templates exist and can be used to build brand communications.

However, if you are creating a format that falls outside of our pre-set templates, then the grid should never drop below a 12x12 ratio. This creates enough crossing points for the block structure of our brand to be created. You can refer to a pre-set template which is closest to your format as a guide to the type of grid you should use.

A4 6 Column

The A4 6 column grid can be used when designing cover pages or more complex documents and spreads.

This grid system allows communications to have a unified look whilst still allowing for creativity and flexibility throughout the vast range of marketing collateral produced. It can be split in different ways depending on the content to be designed.

Digital Marketing Grids

Digital formats often have extreme aspect ratios that restrict usable space. As our system allows for maximum flexibility, whilst staying consistent, accessible and legible.

Here are some layout concepts that can be adapted for use. Formats with less extreme aspect ratios can follow layouts used in printed media.

Highlight Line Size Guide Print

To ensure a consistent usage of the highlight line across print documents, a range of pre-set thicknesses have been determined for different formats sizes, as seen here.

If you are designing on a format that falls outside of these sizes, then an element of good design sense will have to come into the decision making, ensuring that the line thickness looks correct for that format size. Refer to the marketing team and brand guardians, if you are unsure about what looks visually correct.

Our Photography

Photography is one of our most influential brand assets, high-quality photos are crucial to create authenticity in our communications. Photography can be taken from the University of Galway image library, a commissioned photoshoot or from a high-quality stock image website.

Our photography should always feel authentic and never staged. Where possible use imagery with a documentary realist tone, that captures real life moments and experiences. Photos should have one clear focal point. To achieve the most authentic shots, the photographer should always feel like a natural part of the environment.

It's important to keep in mind that copy or logos will also be incorporated in marketing collateral so please ensure when commissioning photography that the photographer leaves enough negative space around the subject matter.

University Life

University life photography is used to capture the university's unique and diverse culture.

These photos should capture authentic moments of university life from a student perspective. It is important to choose photos with diverse subjects, that capture an informal, intimate and candid moment in time. Subjects should look natural and undisturbed by the photographer.

Photos should have a documentary realism and should not be overexposed or feel staged in any way.

Environment and Facilities

Photography of our campus environment and buildings can be an effective way of giving potential students and staff an authentic picture of our world-class facilities.

Our buildings, old and new, provide a rich environment for dynamic photography. Where possible, particularly in international marketing, include the quad building as this is a landmark that is synonymous with our heritage.

Visual Style

All our images should have a bespoke visual style. When choosing imagery it is important to adhere to the outlined visual style guides.

Documentary Realism

Real people, real situations, real environments. We use documentary realism style that embodies a photo-journalistic eye to capture authentic moments in time.

Dynamic

Our images must have a main focal element or subject to draw attention and communicate confidence. Our images must showcase diversity and the different communities at the University.

By maintaining the same approach to colour, lighting, mood and subject matter, we can create an immediately recognisable look for the University.

Colour

All of our images should have natural or slightly muted colour tones, in order to demonstrate a genuine 'true to life' realism and set an ambient mood. A Galway Maroon tint can be added to imagery to add further ownability.

Composition

Images should always have a distinct subject or focal point. It is important to choose images that are uncluttered and have space for potential headlines, copy or the University of Galway logos.

Personality

Authentic and real.
Human – warm and engaging.
Diverse – ages, interactions, multi-cultured.
Confident, approachable, positive and grounded.

Image Retouching

When selecting images from a stock library or photoshoot, retouching or cropping may be necessary to ensure the image feels in line with our photography style guides.

Images can be retouched and edited to add further ownability and create imagery that is instantly recognisable as part of the University of Galway brand.

Guidelines on photo retouching are demonstrated to the right.

Colour Correction

A 5% Galway Maroon tint can be added to imagery.

Colour Overlay

In some cases a Galway Maroon overlay can be added to imagery. This overlay must not distract from or remove focus from the subject. Use of colour overlays must be signed off by a brand manager.

Subject Cut-out

Subjects can be cut from their background and placed over solid colour blocks. Not all subjects can be cut from their background. It is important to choose imagery in which the subject does not distort when cut from its background. Use of this retouch style must be signed off by a brand manager.

Galway Maroon highlight

This retouch style instantly adds a splash of Galway Maroon to highlighted areas of an image. This retouch style must be signed off by a brand manager.

Galway Icons

Icons can be used as an additional asset in supporting our communications. Icons should always be representative of the data that it's conveying. Icons should never be used as space filler or out of context.

Icons are to be predominantly used in digital applications to aid navigation, but can also be utilised in other applications, e.g. brochures, to communicate details such as statistics.

Only approved icons can be used in marketing collateral.

When designing new apps please use the following guidelines.

Galway Maroon Icons

Icons will always appear in a Galway Maroon circle with a white line icon and a stroke width of 4pt.

White Icons

Icons will always appear in a white circle with a Galway Maroon line icon and a stroke width of 4pt.

Please refer to the brand asset portal for a range of pre-existing icons.

Having a clear tone of voice is vital to the consistency of communications. The job of the brand language is to deliver a clear and concise message containing our brand principles, so that every time our audience receives a communication, they get the same impression of what our brand is about.

The right brand language builds long-lasting relationships with our audiences. It changes the way they think – and often, how they feel about us.

A unified approach to language can also drive cultural change. It gets everyone in our organisation to understand the bigger picture and their role in it.

And it helps us to work in a more brand-aligned way.

It's not always what you say, but how you say it.

The name of the University

When referring to our new name, we are Ollscoil na Gaillimhe when using the Irish language and University of Galway in all other communications.

Understand our audience

We need to embed in our communications that we are confident and focused.

Our key messaging and communications is guided by our deep understanding of our audience. This leads us to clear and focused content that resonates.

Be clear about your objective

It's the best way to fine-tune what you need to say to get the result you want; In many cases, we will need to have more detailed information, in others we may just be making our audience aware of a fact.

Use everyday language

It's always better to use the simple everyday terms – the word or phrase that a person would use in a conversation, rather than a longer word with the same meaning.

Be engaging

This is a key element for everything we write. It's crucial to make your readers feel that you understand their point of view and are addressing their interests and priorities.

Make it easy

Always assume that your readers are busy and have other things that they could or should be doing. You should do everything you can to make it easy for them to get what they need out of what they are reading.

Be relevant

Try to include one example that you recently undertook that may also be in the wider consciousness. This could also be a short testimonial. Also include keywords that will help with search engine optimisation but avoid using wall-to-wall jargon that may turn the reader off.

Be inclusive

If relevant, make sure your copy mentions that you offer help to everyone, irrespective of their background.

Core Positioning / Themes / Values

When writing copy, please ensure you are mindful and aligned in your use of narrative and language to the brand positioning, core University values (page 5) and core themes (page 6).

'Your space & place to thrive' is what we do.

But how do we do it?

We utilise our tone of voice to enable us to articulate who we are and what we do across every output. There are four key elements that form the basis of how we articulate who we are and what we do for the audience that we want to connect with.

- Headline
- Body Copy
- Call to Action
- Sign-off

Headlines

Our headlines should stand out.

They should be a bold and confident statement of our ambition.

They should make people think and make people talk about them.

Here's how

By being confident, bold and at times refreshingly frank.

- By expressing an informed point of view.
- By approaching topics from an original, different or unexpected angle.
- By using genuine, dynamic, energetic language.

Body Copy

Our body copy is where we do our explaining. We recognise the huge amount of information we output to the world, quite often describing the research topics we tackle on a global stage. However, our copy should be clear, precise and well-structured with a tone that engages our audience.

Here's how

- By using an approachable and confident tone of voice.
- By detailing the key information or fact in a straightforward way.
- By realistically representing our world and the audience we are connecting with.
- By always bringing clarity to a subject.
- By detailing our role in a precise and logical fashion.

We have different reasons for communicating with individual audiences, and they have different needs and priorities when dealing with us.

So, as well as our core brand narrative, we also have audience specific variations to use in communications materials aimed directly, and only, at those audiences.

You can build on further information as you need to, but it should always be used as a starting point.

University Level

We are reaching out to the world, so we want to position the University on the global stage. Here, we communicate what we're doing that will have an impact at the highest levels.

College Level

We tell the big picture stories that are defining the subjects being taught and the research that will emerge to challenge and change the future of our world.

Discipline Level

We create bold and challenging awareness of the levels of expertise in each discipline, impossible to ignore, designed to energise and engage.

School Level

We enable individuals to tell their school experiences on a platform that promotes their research in a challenging and confident way to best reach their target audiences.

Course Level

We call out the wide-reaching benefits of learning at the course level, marketing each course to target specific audiences.

University

Capitalise only when used as part of the title of the University or when referring to the University of Galway (both when 'university' is used as a noun and when it is used as an adjective). However, when referring to universities in general, the word university should be written lowercase.

Here's how

- The University of Galway is a large employer. The University has – 2,500 staff members.
- The University has numerous academic divisions.
- The event is open to all members of the University.
- The largest University division is Medical Sciences.
- Funding for universities has been cut recently.
- She attended the University of Galway to study Arts. It's a well-respected university and course.

Colleges and Schools

Capitalise only when used as part of the title of a college or school, not when referring to a college or school without using its full name.

Here's how

- Welcome to the College of Business, Public Policy and Law.
- How many colleges are there in Galway?
- The University of Galway has 4 colleges, 19 schools and over 60 academic disciplines.
- The College has a wide range of undergraduate, taught postgraduate and research postgraduate programmes.
- The School of Chemistry is one of the most active in Ireland.
- There are some exciting developments within our 19 schools.

Course Names

Capitalise the name of a subject only when it is used as part of a course title, but not if it is used in other contexts. Also capitalise the subject name when referring to the College or department.

Here's how

- While studying economics, she focused on the theories of Adam Smith.
- Bono studied Philosophy, Politics and Economics at J E Cairnes.
- A degree in history teaches you to think analytically.
- The largest University division is Medical Sciences.
- The Arts Faculty at Galway has an excellent reputation.
- She did Business Management at Galway.

Degrees

Capitalise the level of a degree only when referring to a specific qualification or course, but not when referring to any qualification at that level.

Here's how

- She finished her Master's in Linguistics and started a DPhil in Philology.
- We offer many masters' degrees, and many people go on to doctorates.

Abbreviation

Under no circumstances is the name of the university – University of Galway – to be abbreviated.

An exception to this is on social media, specifically where character count is limited - @uniofgalway.

All queries in relation to social profiles and handles should be referred to Marketing & Communications.

When referring to any school, college or department, do not abbreviate any of the names or substitute 'and' for '&'.

Social Media

Our social media activity aims to inspire our audiences at every opportunity. By making content that is accessible to all we can make even the most complex topic engaging and relevant to their world.

When considering social media activity, please contact the University's marketing and communications team or colleagues in your college.

Artwork dimensions must follow the required specifications of each particular social media channel.

Channel artwork should be periodically updated to support current marketing campaigns.

Paid Social Post Examples

Paid social posts will reach a wider audience, therefore not everyone engaging with these posts will be familiar with our brand.

For consistency as one University of Galway brand we only ever use our primary logos in paid social posts. Individual colleges, schools, research institutes etc, must be referenced and brought to the fore in the post supporting copy. Please do not use lock-up logos in any social post, see example to the right.

If the composition is 1:1 or 4:1 we should always use primary logo in its full format. If the composition is smaller than 1:1 or 4:1 we can revert to the primary logo in its stacked format to ensure there is adequate clear space.
