

Conceptions of Causality and Freedom in the History of Metaphysics

2nd April 2014

Graduate Student Workshop in Traditional Metaphysics National University of Ireland, Galway

The workshop will bring together graduate scholars engaging metaphysical, epistemological and moral issues surrounding freedom and causality in the history of metaphysics broadly understood.

Although there is no registration fee, do email d.parashkevova1@nuigalway.ie if you plan to attend.

The workshop will take place in THB-G011 Seminar Room in the AHSSRB (new research building adjoining the library).

9.30	Coffee and Welcome
10.00	Desislava Parashkevova (NUI Galway) 'Self-Causation and Metaphysical Necessity: An Adaptation of Plato's Theory of Forms'
11.00	Michael Lyons (Trinity College Dublin) 'Pereboom and the Practical Reasons for Accepting Kant's Transcendental Freedom'
12.00	Jonathan Head (Keele) 'Schopenhauer on Freedom and the Intelligible Character'
1.00	Lunch, Moffetts Restaurant

2.30	Morganna Lambeth (Northwestern) 'Event Perception in Kant and Heidegger'
3.30	Coffee
4.00	Damir Cacic (Central European University) 'What is Incompatibilism?'
5.00	Dinner in Galway City