

Publication: Galway Independent
Date: Wednesday, August 10, 2011
Page: 76
Extract: 1 of 1
Circulation: 58.012
Author:
Headline: Learning how scientists work

Learning how scientists work

Galway will host Ireland's first ever European Researchers Night in Salthill next month. Sea2Sky, a one-day celebration of science, is being organised by NUI Galway and will take place in Leisureland and at Galway Atlantaquaria, Salthill on Friday 23 September from 11am to 11pm.

In the lead-up to the event, the organisers are running an art competition for the eight to 18-year-old age group. Entrants are asked to design a new research vessel for the Sea2Sky scientists for the year 2040. Information on the competition can be obtained on www.sea2sky.ie.